

Aurora Public Schools

Art Teachers Earn High Honors

The Colorado Art Education Association recently recognized three Aurora Public Schools art teachers for their creative savvy and teaching skills.

- East Middle School art instructor Jenn Knowles was elected vice president of the organization.
- Columbia Middle School's Aaryn Novy earned the Middle School Art Teacher of the Year award.
- Linda Schmale, from Gateway High School, received the High School Art Teacher of the Year honor.

The Colorado Art Education Association provides a variety of services and programs that strengthen existing art programs and nurture the development of art education in schools and communities without art.

Congratulations to these outstanding teachers!

Jenn Knowles

Aaryn Novy and Linda Schmale

Did You Know?

Aurora Public Schools offers athletic programs for all middle and high school students. Those programs include basketball, track and field, soccer and wrestling. Participation in athletics is designed to promote school spirit, provide a healthy outlet for energy, improve student morale and increase community involvement and support.

For information about APS athletics and activities and a complete list of middle and high school programs, visit athletics.aurorak12.org.

